WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 30, 1862

Another "Tribuna" humbug.

The electoral victory

One of the best gifts of Heaven is a strong imagination, and our colloquy seems to prove that it runs in the blood. Some of our readers will remember how we were taught to believe that Cepeda was a victory, until Urquiza's myrmidons crossed the Puente-Marquez. Even when the coloradas closed every outlet of our city, the "Tribuna" proved clearly that we had gained a great moral triumph by clogging the gaol-cells and such close confinement with this centre of civilization "Human folly, as Dumas said to Hector Varsa no limits," and some credulous individuals are persuaded that when Varela entered his Paean, Troy is saved from destruction.

The elections on Sunday, in spite of the popularity (!) of the opposition, in spite of the harangues of our Patrician demagogues, in spite of the accommodating spirit prevailed for the occasion:—were a splendid victory for the Capitalists and a most disgraceful defeat for the Tribunenos. It is rather surprising that the vanquished did not, while their discomfiture was fresh, find anything in such extreme bad taste as the vapid effusions of our discomfited colleague, we have rarely seen in print. After a signal reverse men, sometimes lose their wits, and it certainly seems the x x cess of folly for the gentlemen who boast of their great services (!) for defending Alleluia, when their townsmen throw them overboard as unfit leaders.

If the tinkers, as Sir V. expresses himself, had voted his liberalist, they should have been extolled as distinguished patriotic merchants. Happily, however, for our tranquility, the shop-keepers did not suffer themselves to be led by the nose or bullied, and the reckless exercise of their suffrages must be the noblest protest against the misguided enthusiasm of the "Tribuna". The most ridiculous thing is, to see our colleague retract all his fighting-cocks-ships with regard to the mercantile body, asking how it were possible he could be guilty of such an offence. The feeling at the Bolsa on Monday was unmitigated satisfaction, and we congratulate the Argentine on the display of good sense which is before us and in the following returns: For new Senators.

Molina, Llavallol and Azcuenaga	4787
Saine, Lucena and Laredo	2714
Majority for Candidates	2073
For vacancy of Deputy.
Dr. Acosta	4571
Dr. Mariano Varela	2909

Minority for the first-enter 1662.

What a pity that we have not elections every day! Let the deceived patriots who shout so loudly about their popularity, throw themselves on the people by seeking re-election. They would be astonished at the result of their sincerity; but alas! they know too well how the cat jumps, and all their pseudo-stations, services, & motivations interdictions are summed up by Virgil: Lucet, et preterea nihil.

Editor's table.

The Saintonge won't be here before the 4th, owing to some fonst days in Rio: this, of course, in any other country would entail a heavy fine on the Company, but things that ought to be fined are overlooked here, and those who sign bonds attract more pecuniary attention than the violation of a contract causing so much inconvenience and anxiety to the public.

Jerked beef is the great topic of the day: the Gov. is beginning to see that this business is completely annihilated, and, as it has gave a good revenue, the great decline in the business has naturally affected the revenue. During the first few years, there has been a steady decrease in the killing in this province:

In 1857,	354,000	animals were killed
In 1858,	361,200	do
In 1859,	367,000	do
In 1860,	290,000	do
In 1861,	272,000	do

and still prices have declined most terribly. In the Banda Oriental, however, the killing is on the increase each year, and although it was only half that of Buenos Ayres in 1857, it is now double that of this province.

The merchants in Montevideo, perceiving that the demand is limited, are using exertions to introduce the beef into other markets of destroying this export: from the moment that the animal enters the saladero's corral, until the beef and hides are stowed in the ship's hold, it is but one continued round of toil, and they have in vain complained of this, until all these taxes have brought their inevitable consequences.

Wool, which is now the grand staple, is also most seriously taxed, and though the Gov. is ready to means of filling up the deficit in the treasury, still heavy taxes upon the exports are the most suicidical measures a finance minister can have to resort to.

The result of the elections has been a commercial triumph, and on the Bolsa the merchants congratulate themselves that the party who snubbed and insulted them, has been so completely defeated:—paper money is also falling, and it is positively difficult of investment at short dates. A No. 1 signatures are done below the bank rate, and with out any second name, which is a great advantage this month we expect a large increase in the circulation among shippers, as dry hides are coming in from all sides, but prices there must give way as the Stock is so considerable every little boat that comes down from the river brings a lading—two have been brought up by the Barraquetes and classified, but stocks are so increasing that hold is most evidently gave way. The home markets are so low that any change must be for the better.

Congress—Senators.

The Chamber met yesterday, and accepted the an-ulment in the Conds by railway bill, as introduced by the Minister of finance, in the Chamber of Deputies, with the effect that Government should interfere in the tariff while in the dividends may exceed 12 per cent.

Colon Theatre.

The French company on tours at Colonia at the house now in the occupancy of Mr. Bonfanti, gave a performance on Sunday evening last, which was well attended, and the piece performed very well indeed, not on the whole, but in particular parts in all the theatre a little too strong depiction of Heart of the out and actors. The piece was Les pattes de mouche, a comedy, extremely well written, and we know they can hardly meet any better out on the stage. The evening's piece was Deux Dames au Vichy, a weak and extravagant piece which obtained a position only in the Imperial pastime which the Mesdames Lyon gave of the heroines: their singing, as usual, went, and good will be one of the reasons entertainment was prefer—to—repeat.

Mons. Dubois as usual, did wonders: we will be hard upon if Tu es, monsieur is not the best thing he ever did, and we would rank with some of the best names in the dramatic art. As it is, his delineations are gone fully admirable and his certainly frequent) [illegible] yes us to doubt as to his identity—Leaving the gay Frenchmen as, we take a moment at home.

Victoria Theatre.

Whose Spanish drama appears as sombre and serious after the Gallic gaieties, nevertheless it is no less worthy in its line.

A very clever company, in all selected pieces, calls for a more lengthened notice, but even with our enlarged space we must postpone it—briefly recommending our readers to enjoy a pleasant and profitable hour with the Spanish comedians when they can.

Montevideo.

August 28th.

Mr. Editor.

Last Friday evening a party of us went to the teatro Solis to hear Parodi and Altieri in Traviatore. The attendance was but slim, but I was agreeably surprised to find the house well lighted; rather an unusual occurrence at this theatre. Perhaps the caricature which appeared in the Zapato about two weeks ago, representing a young Oriental leaning half out of his box, in order to throw the light of a bull's-eye lantern, which he holds in his hand, upon the stage has served to enlighten the managers of the theatre also. Certainly, a badly lighted house seems to throw a damper over the entire performance.

Of course, you have seen Parodi. Is not she great! What a volume there is to her voice, and what an actress she is! Her Azucena was a masterly performance. A friend of mine remarked that the opera was the very essence of the melody of passion—no tawdry, edge-less, rich, liquid and intoxicating—a concoct among the winter of operatic voice.

But the Altieri took us all by surprise. Her voice, it is true, is rather thin, and her acting not at all times natural; but, she can afford it, she is undeniably a very handsome woman. What dreamy, yet most merry eyes she has! What matchless shoulders! What statuesque arms, tapering from the shoulders to the very tips of her tapering fingers! With what a grace and effect she managed them. With such a humor who would not be Manrico! Upon my word, Mr. Editor, we were half of us in love with her before the conclusion of the first act. Young, an American friend, rushed up to me in the entrance, between the acts, vowing that 'she was a gigantic tramp, by Jove, and a regular stunner,' in which opinion I fully coincided, when he insisted upon preparing me a 'brandy-cocktail' at the bar, enthusiastically drinking her health therewith.

By the bye, yes here are many spots there is a gymnasium here, chiefly attended by the "Musculmen." Climbing, leaping, double trapeze movements, etc. etc. are the order of the evening. There are about 80 members and more than half are English, and although not so large and handsome as the German Gymnastic Club grounds in your city, is very neatly arranged and remarkably well kept.

Knickerbocker.

Mr Beal ast sermont had been collecting subscriptions for making an accent in October on the occasion of the civic feast.

A great division had taken place in the Masonic lodge of that city and a virulent pamphlet had been printed in which Dr Castellanos present grand master was censured very severely for having permitted the increase of Semitism in the country.

The Tucuman question of jerked beef was still discussed in the papers and we are very glad to hear that the enterprising merchants of that city sent per Mississippi to Manitius and Singapore a small quantity of jerked to of on speculation.

The Republics complains of the Regatta between the Villa del Salto and Salto which endanger the lives of passengers.

A banquet took place on board the former steamer at which the Minister of war and Finance attended.

The Lancashire relief fund.

We gratefully acknowledge the receipt of 8.200 from Mr. M. Gould, Partido Rauchos.

We extract from an English paper the following and picture of the prevailing distress in the manufacturing districts of England.

The Distress in Preston.—Preston is more deeply overshadowed by the peculiar gloom of the times than many other places in Lancashire. About half-past nine on Tuesday morning last, I set out with an old acquaintance to call upon a certain member of the relief committee, in George's Ward.

His is the manager of a cotton mill in that quarter, and he is well known and much respected among the working people. When we entered the mill-yard, all was quiet there, and the factory was still and silent. But, through the office window, we could see the man we wanted. He was accompanied by one of the proprietors of the mill, turning over the relief books of the ward. I soon found that he had a strong sense of humour, as well as a kind heart, for, as we entered the room, he pointed to some of the cases in his books. The first was that of an old man, an ex-hooker of a cotton mill His family was thirteen in number; three of the children were under ten years of age; seven of the rest were factory operatives; but the whole family had been out of work several months. When in employment the joint earnings of the family amounted to eighty shillings a week; but after struggling on in the hope of better times, and exhausting the savings of past years, they had been driven down to the receipt of charity at last; and for six-or-seven weeks gone by the whole thirteen had been living upon six shillings a week from the relief fund. They had no other resources. I went to see them at their own house afterwards, and it certainly was a picture of cleanliness, with the little household gods there still. To see that house, a stranger would never dream that the family were living on an average income of less than sixpence a head per week. But I know how hard some decent folk will struggle with the bitterest poverty before they will give in to it. The old man came in whilst I was there. He was a powerful, sturdy fellow, fresh-looking away at something bad in his hands. His old corduroy trousers were well patched, and just new washed. He had very little to say to us, except that. "He would like to get a mount to do; for he were tired o' walkin' about-a." Another case was that of a poor widow woman, with five young children. This family had been driven from house to house, by increasing necessity, till they had sunk at last into a dingy little hovel, up a dark court, in one of the poorest parts of the town, where they huddled top ther in the friendless grate, to keep one another warm. They had nothing left of the wreck of their home but two broken arm chairs, and a little deal table reared against the wall, because one of the legs was gone. In this miserable hole—which I saw afterwards—her husband died of sheer starvation, as was pronounced by the jury on the inquest. The dark, damp hovel where they had crept to was scarcely four yards square; and the poor woman pointed to one corner of the floor, saying, "His head lay at that corner." He died there, with nothing to lie upon but the ground, and nothing to cover him in that friendless hovel. His wife and children crept about him, there, to watch him die; and to keep him as warm as they could. When the relief committee first found this family out, the entire clothing of the family of seven persons weighed eight pounds, and used for five-and-a-half days by the family afterwards, at their pour place; and will say more about them hereafter.—Manchester Examiner.

Correspondence.

To the Editor of the Standard

Sir—

Please insert in your valuable paper the following important description of Pedigree wheat. If the native papers would translate it for the benefit of the Chacreros in Chivilcoy, it might be of the greatest use to the people in this country are most negligent in their selection of seed, and consequently have an indifferent crop

Your &c.

N. L.

"PEDIGREE WHEAT."

Mr. Hallett exhibits his wonderful examples of what he terms "pedigree wheat" and a more curious or a more instructive lesson than he offers in his samples is not to be found in the Exhibition. Mr. Hallett has applied to the growth of wheat the same skill which every stockbreeder in the country knows—namely, that from the largest and best animals, the largest and best progeny may be expected, and that therefore, the agriculturist should proceed to develope the productive powers of wheat as if it were altogether a new species of cereal which he was trying to bring to perfection for the first time. Mr. Hallett, in 1857, planted only seven ears of the "pedigree" containing 47 grains. In 1858, his finest ears was 6 1/4 inches, long, contained 130 grains, and there were ears from the finest plants in 1860 they were more perfect, from the wet season, but by supposed only to have reserved and husbanded their productiveness for a more auspicious occasion, as in 1861 the finest ear was not less than 8 3/4 inches long, containing 193 grains, and the number of ears in the finest single plant had risen from the starting number of 1st in 1857 to 82 in 1861. The various ears and their dates sowing are shown in the case in the annexed, and, as Mr. Hallett is a high practical authority, his conclusions are not likely to pass unnoticed.
